

Outlook

Egypt's Projections of Regional and Global Issues

2021

Outlook

Egypt's Projections of Regional and Global Issues

2021

المركز المصري للفكر والدراسات الاستراتيجية
EGYPTIAN CENTER FOR STRATEGIC STUDIES

Dr. Khaled Okasha

General Manager

Dr. Abd Elmeneam Said

Academic Advisor

Editing

Dr. Khaled Hanafy Aly

General Coordinator

Mai Saeed

Art Director

Ahmed Hosny

100 AL-Merghani St., Heliopolis, Cairo
+20226905863 | +20226905862 | +20226905861

www.ecsstudies.com

Index

Outlook

Egypt's Projections of Regional and Global Issues

2021

www.ecsstudies.com

General framework: 2021 Outlooks for Egypt, the Middle East, and the world	6
Great Powers: The United States Russia Europe China	22
Global economy: Growth Outlook Supply Chains Oil Market	38
Armament: International armament Regional armament Unconventional armament	52
Technological Developments: Qualitative technology Cyber security Social media	66
Global issues: Health policies Populist tide The middle class Traditional and new media Environmental issues	78

Non-Arab Regional Powers:

96

Israel
Iran
Turkey

Maritime Regional Security:

108

Militarization of maritime security

Eastern Mediterranean security

Security of the Red Sea

East Africa:

122

Sudan
Ethiopia
GERD

Arab Internal Crises:

134

Syria
Yemen
Libya
Western Sahara
Iraq

The Palestinian cause:

154

The Palestinian interior
Palestinian-Israeli relations
Palestinian-Arab relations
Palestinian-US relations

Terrorist organizations:

170

The Muslim Brotherhood
Al-Qaeda
IS
Mercenary militias

Egyptian trends:

188

Economic paths
Foreign Policy
Internal policy

Outlook 2021 staff:

200

Advisory board

ECSS experts and external experts
ECSS researchers

General framework:

2021 Outlooks for Egypt, the Middle East, and the world

- Will Biden succeed in calming the global turmoil?
- Trends of «calming down» in the Middle East crises
- The Egyptian path in building at home and protecting Egypt's interests abroad

Dr. Abdel Monem Said Aly

2020 has not been, by all accounts, an ordinary year in human history. There were no global, regional, or economic disasters. There was no cold war that made the international order descend into chaos. To the whole world's great surprise, it was a tiny virus that caused a major health crisis that hit the entire world without exception. This tiny virus did not differentiate between developed and underdeveloped countries, rich or poor, the right or the left.

The coronavirus was not just a pandemic that took all the world's countries by storm, it was also a test of these countries' political systems, at the top of which the US system, whose latest elections, which took place during the crisis, proclaimed Joe Biden as the country's new president.

With the advent of a new US president who is more open to dealing with the world as a whole and not as divided parts, and with the advent of new vaccines for the coronavirus, the world could finally heave a sigh of relief in 2021.

This publication, 'Outlooks 2021,' presents a vision for the world, the Middle East and Egypt that is based on moving on from the crisis itself to the aftermath of the crisis and how the world will deal with the virus' health, economic and social repercussions. The mission of dealing with these repercussions will not be easy, but it will be difficult on both the global and the regional levels. In Egypt, success in this field means opening many doors to the resumption of progress and growth, and dealing with the regional issues so as to reach stability again.

